ENGLAND IN SOUTH AFRICA.

The indications are that Great Britain may have trouble in the near future that will involve the British empire. There are men in England who are equal to the times whose judgment is that the most critical time since the beginning of the empire is now upon it. The ambition of the ruling class who represent the money power in England has become so manifest and pronounced in its over-bearing manner which is expressed in war made on the weak, that the civilized world appears to rejoice over its defeat.

Whatever may be the result of the war made upon the Dutch in South Africa, it will disclose more fully to the civilized world the real object of Great Britain when it is making war upon the weak peoples on the earth. Much has been accomplished by that power in an ambitious way under the pretext of extending civilization, which pretext has covered a multitude of sins committed to effect ambitious ends. Hitherto civilization has not suffered because of the pretext, as civilization has been aided, which is a redeeming fact in the nation's ambition; but as conditions now are it seems that civilization as a pretext will not apply.

The Boers are an enlightened people who are entitled, before all other people in South Africa, to consideration for what they have accomplished on the Dark Continent in the interest of a higher civilization in that part of Africa they occupy.

It has been given to the world since the time of Nelson, England's greatest naval commander, that Britannia rules the sea, which claim, when its navy and merchant marine are considered, largely represent the truth, but it is not established that there is a Nelson in its naval service to-day, and it is being speedily developed that there is not a Wellington in command in any department of the army, and it is possible never may be.

The ambition of England, as represented through those who manage national affairs, is to rule the earth and the success of her most cherished purpose, as outlined by the ruling class, has had success against the weak, as represented in the extension of her dominion over much of the earth's surface. The dominion of the sea represents a power that will require immense force at arms and in mental ability to overcome. Naval supremacy, as commercial relations are, is equal to great military strength upon land, because of advanced civilization, which has made all advanced nations largely dependent upon an interchange of products and commodities, that have become necessary to furnish the comforts of life.

When we have given the strong war arm of England all the consideration it is entitled to receive as a military force upon the seas, and take into review its land war power, we learn that it is not sufficiently strong to inspire fear, and at no time in the history of the nation has that fact been so fully exemplified as it was in the revolution and is now being exemplified in South Africa.

The advanced condition of Great Britain in civilization becomes weakness against the more rough and less refined civilization of the Boers. Hardship, that is encountered on the rough side of life has given fiber and will power to the natural stubbornness of the Transvaal people, which, like the sustaining will power of the colonists, has received a training that will give results that will not be given by the British, because they are not in action in a more delicate life that has received its force largely from commercial pursuits. These conditions in two months of war have been marked in the movements made by the contending forces and will continue to become more noticeable as the war progresses.

A high civilization has its advantages and disadvantages, and one of its disadvantages is present with the British forces in South Africa in the Boer war. The late wars made by England represent conditions between a high civilized people possessed of all the modern and improved means of war, and savage races, or half-civilized people, that were not trained in modern warfare, and were not possessed of the means to make war upon their superior antagonist, but in South Africa war conditions are changed and the British are in opposition to men whose blood is largely from the same source that British blood is from, and whose blood has not lost any more of its value in South Africa than British blood lost of its value in the American colonies.

Great Britain in the Transvaal war may be taught a lesson that will be to its advantage, as it will include a principle representing power that will not down when England wills it so, and that it will be better policy to stick to commerce when blood of her blood and bone of her bone must be conquered in the interest of money. The money interests in England control the government and the people, and at no time in the past have these interests been so active as they are at present. The cause that stimulates the action of money more at this time is not fully apparent, but the effect requires no explanation as it is uppermost in all that the nation is doing, and the work that the nation is doing in the interest of money will not in the end be advantageous to the best interests of England, and whatever may tend to injure the nation will have an injurious effect upon the world and its immediate future.

The Mining Outlook.

Mining crazes are of periodical occurrences all over this western country and they generally end as they begin, abruptly and without sufficient cause. Propositions of little value are exploited and dirt is made to fly in all directions. Then, when the worthless claims are abandoned the more promising mines in the district close down also out of some occult sympathy.

Sometimes, however, a craze is based upon a substantial strike and then there is a larger or smaller boom of greater or less duration.

It looks to a rank tenderfoot as though the latter condition is drawing close to Reno. It may be delayed until spring, but it will come. There have lately been strikes and rumors of strikes around this blooming village, until even the mosebacks and silurians have chased out into the hills to see if they can't get an extension somewhere.

Peavine is now the Mecca of the prospector. The old mountain, over which several excitements have raged, is liable to again resound to the ring of pick and boom of giant shot.

Old miners say that Peavine is concealing more gold, silver and copper than would pay the national debt. The difficulty has always been to see the Simon pure alamazodium sticking out of the ground in chunks.

But the prospective locator is willing to take low grade ore nowadays if he can find enough of it. This puts a new phase on the situation. There are low grade ledges in abundance in the wealthy old hill. Within the last week or two a couple of score of notices have been posted on these croppings and some high grade propositions have been found, or reported to have been.

Wheelmen's Grand Ball.

To-morrow will appear the ad. of the annual ball to be given by the Reno Wheelmen Club, January 1st. This event promises to be one of the greatest attractions and most original party ever witnessed in the State.

Every person taking part in the grand march is supposed to represent some historical character, or wear some style of colonial dress. The costumes do not necessarily have to be made of silk, satin or velvet, for many beautiful and original suits may be made at little or no cost whatever. The ladies may wear some dress their grandmothers wore, and the gentlemen can easily represent some historical subject.

Elegant prizes have been offered for the best sustained historical character, lady and gent, and from all reports there will be many contestants.

The bicycle drill by young ladies and gentlemen, preceding the grand march, and the grand cake walk in white face and colonial dress will be pleasing features of the evening.

Everyone should attend, for the Wheelmen's reputation as entertainers is a guarantee of an enjoyable evening.

MINES AND MINING

IN THIS STATE

News of Nevada's Leading Industry

Clipped From Sagebrush Exchanges.

The Chalumian Mining company expects to have its mill at Ely, White Pine county, dropping its stamps all winter.

The yield of the placers at Osoyoos, White Pine county, this year was $15,000, representing the work of seven men, and the owners expect to maintain this yield indefinitely.

The mill belonging to the Tescup Mining company at Cherry Creek, White Pine county, was destroyed by fire of incendiary origin last week.

The Pioche Record is exultant over the outlook for that section of the State and thinks it is in the copper belt of the State.

The Glasgow & Western company was true to the report it gave out last week that two furnaces of the smelter would be started up Saturday, says the Golconda News. A fire was started that evening and the furnaces were heated gradually until Tuesday morning, when the first charge was put in. Tuesday morning a gang of twenty laborers were put to work, fourteen in the smelter and six in the yard. Besides these, three millwrights were put to work in the mill making repairs and changes in the plant. It is said they will put in new tables and new crushers. The train has been hauling ore from the mine steadily the past week and the ore bin is now filled to overflowing.

The DeLamar company has granted the petition of the men working at their mill, reducing the hours of labor from twelve to eight, with no reduction of wages.

The Pacific Copper Company is the name of the new incorporation formed for the purpose of developing the Danlay mines in Santa Fe district. Messrs. Ballard, Martin, McCaw and Knapp are the principal stockholders.—Hawthorne Bulletin.

History Repeats.

When the Southern Pacific road was completed and the construction trains from both directions faced each other, Bret Harte commemorated the occurrence by his lines beginning, "Two engines on a single track, half a world behind each back."

Just about the same thing occurred in the Reno yards Sunday. The locomotives in question tried to pass each other on the same track, but couldn't make it.

"Goods dispatched as expeditiously as a cannon ball."

"Parcels done up with as much care as that bestowed on her husband by a loving wife."

"Paper tough as elephant's hide."

"The print of our books is clear as crystal; the matter elegant as singing girl."

"Customers treated as politely as by the rival steamship companies."

"Silks and satins smooth as a lady's cheek and colored like the rainbow."

Care of Rubber Goods.

In putting away rubber gloves, rubber sponge bags and rubber bathing caps a liberal supply of talcum, or even ordinary toilet powder, should be applied to them on all sides, and they should be placed carefully in boxes without rolling. When they are needed for use again, they will not be found adhering in different places in a way that makes pulling apart dangerous, if not entirely disastrous.

WHEN THE QUEEN WAS YOUNG.

[By Charles Mills Gayley.]

When the Queen was young, her gauntlet she flung

In the teeth of the foremost Crime;

And the look on her face was orient grace

For a troublous world and time;

And the glooms were dispelled; and the monsters fled—

When the Queen was young, and her battle was flung

On the brood of Crime.

When the Queen was young her laureates sung

Of brotherhood, freedom and right;

And her prelates prayed, and her counsellors

made

For the cause that was worthy of might;

And, in war and peace, God gave increase

When the Queen was young and her bugles

sung

Of the Glory of Right.

But the century rolled, and the Queen was old

And only her heart was young;

And her wise men died; and her poets lied

And an Upstart Pack gave tongue

To a lickerish crew; and few gave heed,

In the rapture of gold, to the Queen and her old

Old heart—still young.

So her thousands went forth from the Isles of the North

To spoil a handful of men

Whose home was their own, and whose succor

the Throne

Of the God of Battles, Who then

Was then to strike.—There had never like

Befallen the North when her Righteous went forth

And the Queen was young!

Everybody Pleased.

"Doris" was the play given last evening as the initiative performance by the Jessie Shirley company.

that preceded the troupe caused a

NO MORE DANGER

FROM CROSSED WIRES

The Sunset Company Has Removed Menaces to Life and Property.

Manager Lake of the Sunset Telephone Company informed a JOURNAL reporter last evening that the telephone lines that had been in the habit of straying into too close proximity to electric light wires had all been taken down.

These wires are the property of the Sunset Company, as we stated a few mornings ago, Gazzoo's contradictions notwithstanding. They were, however, not erected by them nor by the predecessor of the Sunset, the Nevada Telephone and Telegraph Construction Company, but were strung by the old Bell concern. Of late years they have been little used.

For several days past Mr. Lake has had a gang of men at work removing them.

The Sunset people are doing all in their power to prevent any accidents or inconveniences from their system here. It must be expected, however, that despite their precautions there will be a few crossings while the new lines are being strung. There are 250 phones to be supplied with double wires.

The new poles, about fifty of which have already been set, are of sufficient height to prevent interference, they being 30, 40 and 50 feet long.

Assistant Superintendent Kearns and Superintendent of Construction Brown are both in Reno at present. They say that next summer the telephone lines will be extended to nearly all the important towns in the State. Virginia, Carson, Winnemucca, and probably several other places will have local service.

Eleven linemen are now here waiting for some poles to arrive so that the work of installing the new system will be pressed to a conclusion.

Called by Death.

Lemuel Osburn of this city died Sunday in San Gabriel. The young man had for a year past been in the clutches of that dread disease, consumption.

Several months ago, accompanied by his mother, he went to Southern California where the salubrious climate and skillful medical attendance seemed for a time to stay the ravages of his malady.

Lately, however, he began to decline rapidly. His father, R. S. Osburn, was summoned, but on his arrival in San Gabriel he wired back the sad message that his son was dead.

Lem was aged 25 years. He was a young man of keen intellect and companionable nature. His host of friends, including his university classmates, learn with sadness of his untimely end.

Robbed the Grave.

A startling incident, of which Mr. John Oliver of Philadelphia, was the subject, is narrated by him as follows: "I was in the most dreadful condition. My skin was almost yellow, eyes sunken, tongue coated, pain continually in back and sides, no appetite—gradually growing weaker day by day. Three physicians had given me up. Fortunately, a friend advised trying 'Electric Bitters,' and to my great joy and surprise, the first bottle made a decided improvement, I continued their use for three weeks, and am now a well man. I know they saved my life, and robbed the grave of another victim." No one should fail to try them. Only 50 cts per bottle at S. J. Hodgkinson's Drug Store.

A $5,000,000 Joke.

Some weeks ago an individual struck Carson and, having sampled all other varieties of liquors in the town, called for a glass of water.

"This," as he smacked his lips, "is the best water that grows top side of dirt. What good beer it would assist in making! I think I will build a $5,000,000 brewery."

Of course it was all a joke, but some of the Carsonites took the matter seriously and even went so far as to complain because the Reno papers did not boom the magnificent enterprise.

Creamery Assured.

The Carson Chamber of Commerce will meet in a few days to accept plans for the new creamery buildings.

A promoter of the project said to a JOURNAL reporter last evening, that the creamery would be in operation as soon as the buildings could be put up and the machinery could be installed. It will receive milk from eight or nine hundred cows. Supplies will come from Eagle, Washoe, Jack's and Carson valleys.
